

Queen's College Workshops at the Renaissance Pleasure Faire

So many patrons have discovered the Queen's College Workshops, you can plan on finding them here again next year. The workshops are historic arts, crafts, and trades although we may use some modern-day equipment or supplies. You will find us in the Celebration Garden picnic pavilion, about half-way through the Port village.

For those of you who will take a workshop this weekend, be warned, it can be hard to take only one! Some patrons have taken three workshops in one day (and come back another weekend for more). We try to offer something for everyone in your family to appeal to many tastes and preferences. Let us know what you like and your ideas for next year. Do thank your teachers; they love teaching you and feel special reward when you tell them you appreciate what you have learned.

Our fees are low when materials are donated. If you have some materials or tools that are no longer needed, we will gladly accept them. Stop by Amsbury Beads (booth just inside the entrance gate) and leave a message with Michelle. We will send you a donation letter, so please leave your name and address with anything you leave for us.
